Someday you may wonder what it was really like to be your parent — what I noticed, what I worried about, what I never stopped being proud of. This journal is my answer. Every page is written to you, from me.

Date started:

Before You Begin

This journal isn't for you to answer questions about your own childhood — it's for you to write down what YOU remember about raising your child.

Every prompt is addressed to them. Write however memories come — in order, out of order, in one sitting, or a little at a time.

There is no wrong way to fill these pages. Even a few honest lines will be something your child holds onto forever.

Take your time. There's no deadline on love.

The Hardest Day I Remember as Your Parent

Dear _____, being your parent wasn't always easy. Here is one of the hardest days, and what got us both through it...

A Tradition We Shared

Dear ____, some of my favorite memories are the small things we did again and again. Here is one of our traditions, and why I loved it...

A Memory From a Hard Season in Our Family

Dear _____, our family went through hard seasons like every family does. Here is one of them, and what I learned from getting through it with you...

A Keepsake Memory 1

What I Want You to Carry

Dear ____, if this is one of the last things I leave you, let it be this — everything I hoped for you, everything I saw in you, and everything I want you to remember when I'm not there to say it out loud.

With All My Love,

Mom / Dad

No matter how much time has passed by the time you read this,
know that you were loved completely, from the very beginning,
exactly as you are.
