WELCOME

Before You Begin

Some people use affirmations. Some use vision boards.
And some of us love the codes — number sequences used as focal points for intention, repeated and written to keep the mind pointed at what it's calling in.

However you understand the practice — spiritual law,
focused attention, or a beautiful ritual — the engine
is the same: clarity plus repetition plus belief, backed by aligned action.

This journal is your practice space: choosing your intentions, working your codes daily, and collecting the evidence as things begin to move.

STARTING POINT

What I'm Calling In

Before any codes: what are you actually trying to bring into your life right now — and why does it matter to you? Get specific and honest.

PART ONE

Setting the Intentions

A code without a clear intention is just numbers. Aim first.

What are your top three intentions right now — the ones that would change your daily life most?

For your biggest intention: describe life AFTER it arrives. Morning to night, in detail.

What code or number sequence are you working with for it? Write it large, then write what it represents to you.

How would you FEEL if it were already done? Name the feelings — they're the frequency you're practicing.

*What doubts talk back when you set this intention?
Write them down so they're outside of you, not running the show.*

What would you attempt this month if you fully trusted it was already on its way?

PART TWO

The Daily Practice

Repetition is the ritual. Show up for your codes like they're appointments.

Design your daily code ritual: when, where, how many times written or spoken, and how you'll feel while doing it.

Write your primary code slowly several times here, holding the intention with each one. Then note what you felt.

What gets in the way of daily practice for you — and what tiny anchor (with coffee, before bed) fixes that?

What's one aligned ACTION for each intention — the move that shows the universe (and you) that you're serious?

How do you talk about your life out loud? Do your daily words match your codes or cancel them?

Write today's practice entry: code, intention, feeling, and one aligned action taken or planned.

PART THREE

Evidence & Gratitude

What you appreciate, appreciates. Track the movement.

What signs, synchronicities, or small movements have you noticed since starting? Log everything — small counts.

What has already arrived in your life that you once wished for exactly like this? Let that build your faith.

Where are you gripping the HOW too tightly? What would loosening your grip look like this week?

*What are you grateful for today, right now, as-is?
Fill the space — gratitude is the fastest frequency shift.*

How have YOU changed since beginning this practice — your focus, your mood, your choices?

Write a thank-you note dated one year from now, for everything that came in. Describe it all as already done.

The Practice Checklist

The codes work when you do. Check your daily and weekly moves.

- ☐ Morning: write or speak my code with feeling, unrushed
- ☐ Say one intention out loud in present tense
- ☐ Take one aligned action, however small
- ☐ Catch and flip one doubt sentence today
- ☐ Evening: log any evidence, signs, or movement
- ☐ Three gratitudes before sleep
- ☐ Weekly: reread my intentions — refine or recommit
- ☐ Weekly: clear one thing (drawer, inbox, grudge) to make room
- ☐ Protect the practice: two minutes minimum, no zero days
- ☐ Celebrate every arrival out loud — thank you, more please

The Evidence Page

Every sign, every synchronicity, every arrival — date it and log it here. On doubting days, this page is your proof the practice is working.

BEFORE YOU CLOSE THIS JOURNAL

A Note, From One Human to Another

Whatever you believe about how the codes work, here's what's undeniable: you've spent these pages getting crystal clear on what you want, feeling it as real, and moving toward it daily.

That combination has built every dream that's ever come true. Keep the practice. Keep the faith. Keep taking the aligned steps.

What's coming is already on its way. Act like it.

Clarity. Repetition. Belief. Action. That's the real code.
