

ILIKEITDEEP · A GUIDED JOURNAL

The Space Between

A Journal for the In-Between Seasons

printable pdf · 18 guided questions · for who you're becoming

WELCOME

Before You Begin

There's a strange season nobody prepares you for:
the space between. No longer who you were,
not yet who you're becoming. The old life doesn't fit,
the new one hasn't arrived, and everything feels unlabeled.

After the breakup. After the move. After the job ends, the kids grow, the faith shifts, the diagnosis, the healing.
The in-between.

Most people panic here and rush to fill the space.
This journal teaches you to stand in it — because the space between is where you get built.

Naming the Season

PART ONE

What's Ending

You can't step forward with both hands full of the past. Look at what you're setting down.

What chapter is closing — or already closed — even if you haven't fully admitted it?

*What do you miss about the old version of your life?
Be honest, even about things that weren't good for you.*

What are you relieved to leave behind? Say it without guilt.

What parts of your old identity no longer fit — roles, labels, routines?

What still needs grieving before you can travel light?

Write a thank-you-and-goodbye to the season that's ending. Both parts matter.

PART TWO

Living in the Middle

The in-between isn't a waiting room. It's a workshop.

*What's the hardest part of not knowing what's next
— the silence, the questions from others, the blank calendar?*

What is this season quietly teaching you that a busy season never could?

Without the old labels, who are you on an ordinary day? Describe her.

A decorative border consisting of small dots runs along all four edges of the page.

THE SPACE BETWEEN · 10 OF 18

What old habits or people are you tempted to run back to just because the unknown is uncomfortable?

A small, solid red heart icon is centered horizontally below the question text.

What do you actually have right now — freedoms, time, options — that the old life didn't allow?

PART THREE

What's Becoming

Something in you already knows where this is going. Let it speak.

What tiny pulls have you been feeling — curiosities, ideas, people, places? List them without judging them.

Write a note from future you, on the other side, back to you here in the middle. What does she want you to know?

For the Wobbliest In-Between Days

Some days the middle feels like free-fall. Check your handholds.

- ☐ Say it plainly: 'I'm in a between season, not a broken one'
- ☐ Keep one small daily anchor — same walk, same coffee, same page
- ☐ Answer 'what's next?' with 'good things, still forming' — you owe no details
- ☐ Do one thing today that future you would recognize as hers
- ☐ Unfollow anything that makes the middle feel like losing
- ☐ Let yourself grieve for ten minutes, then make tea
- ☐ Try one tiny new thing this week — newness feeds becoming
- ☐ Rest without calling it falling behind
- ☐ Reread part one of this journal: look how much you've already set down
- ☐ Trust the cocoon. Nothing in there looks finished. Everything is working.

Signs of Who I'm Becoming

Little glimpses of the next you show up early — new tastes, new courage, new peace. Record every sighting here.

BEFORE YOU CLOSE THIS JOURNAL

A Note, From One Human to Another

One day this in-between will be a story you tell:
'that was the season everything quietly changed.'

You don't have to know the ending to walk well through the middle. You just have to keep showing up for the woman who's forming.

She's closer than she feels. Keep going.

Not who you were. Not yet who you'll be. Exactly on time.
