How to Use This Journal

This journal pairs twenty of Carl Jung's most piercing ideas with one honest question each. There is no right way to do this.

Take one page at a time — one a day, one a week, or whenever a quote finds you at the right moment.

Read the quote slowly. Sit with the question. Then write without editing yourself. Nobody is grading this.

The messier the honesty, the deeper the work.

This is inner work. It counts even when no one sees it.

THE INSPIRATION

Who Was Carl Jung?

Carl Jung (1875–1961) was a Swiss psychiatrist and one of the founders of modern psychology. He believed the parts of ourselves we hide, deny, or never examine — what he called the shadow — quietly steer our lives until we turn and face them.

His invitation was simple and brave: look inward. Get to know the whole of who you are, not just the parts that are easy to like. He called that becoming whole.

These pages are your place to do exactly that.

PART ONE

Looking Inward

The answers you keep searching for outside have an address inside you.

“Until you make the unconscious conscious, it will direct your life and you will call it fate.”

— Carl Jung

What pattern keeps repeating in your life that you've been calling bad luck?

“Knowing your own darkness is the best method for dealing with the darkneses of other people.”

— Carl Jung

What part of yourself do you understand now that used to scare you?

"Who looks outside, dreams; who looks inside, awakes."

— Carl Jung

What have you been searching for out there that might already live in you?

“Everything that irritates us about others can lead us to an understanding of ourselves.”

— Carl Jung

Who irritated you recently — and what might that reaction be pointing at in you?

"Your vision will become clear only when you can look into your own heart."

— Carl Jung

If you got quiet and honest for one minute, what does your heart actually want?

"The privilege of a lifetime is to become who you truly are."

— Carl Jung

Who are you when nobody is watching, grading, or needing you?

"There is no coming to consciousness without pain."

— Carl Jung

What painful season taught you something you couldn't have learned any other way?

PART TWO

Facing the Shadow

The parts of you that are hardest to look at hold the most information.

"Shame is a soul-eating emotion."

— Carl Jung

What are you still carrying shame about — and whose voice does that shame speak in?

"There is no recipe for living that suits all cases."

— Carl Jung

What rule about how to live have you been following that was never really yours?

"We cannot change anything until we accept it."

— Carl Jung

What truth about your life are you still arguing with instead of accepting?

“A man who has not passed through the inferno of his passions has never overcome them.”

— Carl Jung

What desire or feeling have you been trying to suppress instead of understanding?

"In all chaos there is a cosmos, in all disorder a secret order."

— Carl Jung

Look at the messiest part of your life right now. What might it be organizing you toward?

“The pendulum of the mind alternates between sense and nonsense, not between right and wrong.”

— Carl Jung

What thought have you judged as wrong that might simply be your mind swinging?

“The sole purpose of human existence is to kindle a light in the darkness of mere being.”

— Carl Jung

Where in your life are you a light — even a small one — for someone or something?

PART THREE

Becoming Who You Are

This was never about fixing yourself. It's about meeting yourself.

"People will do anything, no matter how absurd, to avoid facing their own soul."

— Carl Jung

What do you reach for when you don't want to feel? What are you avoiding facing?

“What you resist not only persists, but will grow in size.”

— Carl Jung

What have you been resisting that keeps getting louder?

“The dream is a little hidden door in the innermost recesses of the soul.”

— Carl Jung

Write down a dream you remember. What might it have been trying to show you?

“Even a happy life cannot be without a measure of darkness.”

— Carl Jung

What darkness are you allowed to feel, even inside a life that looks fine?

"You are what you do, not what you say you'll do."

— Carl Jung

What have you been saying you'll do? What tiny piece of it could you do today?

"Life really does begin at forty. Up until then, you are just doing research."

— Carl Jung

What has your 'research' — everything so far — actually taught you about yourself?

What the Work Showed Me

Flip back through your pages. What themes kept showing up? What do you know about yourself now that you didn't before?

The privilege of a lifetime is to become who you truly are.

— Carl Jung
