A GUIDED JOURNAL + TRACKER FOR BREAKING BAD MONEY PATTERNS

Make It Rain

This isn't a boring budget binder. This is about seeing your money patterns clearly - the emotional spending, the avoidance, the 'I'll deal with it later' - and actually breaking them. Insight first, tracking second, mantras to keep you locked in.

Awareness first. Discipline second. Freedom third.

SECTION ONE

The Money Mirror

What did I learn about money growing up, and is it even true?

When do I spend without thinking - bored, sad, stressed, celebrating?

What's one purchase I regretted, and what was I really feeling before I made it?

Every dollar you track is a dollar you control.

SECTION TWO

The Patterns

What bill or debt do I avoid looking at, and why?

What's my relationship with saving - does it feel possible or pointless?

Where does money 'leak' out of my life without me noticing?

Break the pattern, keep the pattern.

SECTION THREE – TRACKERS

Weekly Spending Tracker

Date	What I bought	Amount	Need/Want

Your bank account reflects your habits, not your worth.

SECTION THREE – TRACKERS

Debt Payoff Tracker

Debt name	Balance	Payment	New Balance

Money flows to women who pay attention.

SECTION THREE – TRACKERS

Savings Goal Tracker

My savings goal: _____ Target amount: _____

Date	Amount saved	Total	Goal %

Awareness first. Discipline second. Freedom third.

SECTION THREE – TRACKERS

Before I Buy It Checklist

- ☐ Do I need this, or do I want this?
- ☐ Would I still want it in 48 hours?
- ☐ What am I actually feeling right now?
- ☐ Does this fit my savings goal this month?
- ☐ Am I buying this for me, or for how it looks to someone else?

Every dollar you track is a dollar you control.

SECTION FOUR

The Rain

What does financial freedom actually look like for me - specific, not vague?

One money habit I'm starting this week.

Break the pattern, keep the pattern.
