A 30-Day Step-Down Journal for Cutting Back

*"Write it. Feel it. Heal it.
Your journal knows the real you."*

Before Day One

This journal has one beautifully low bar: LESS. Not perfect. Not zero. Not cold turkey. Just less than yesterday, less than last month, less than the version of you who wasn't paying attention. Whatever you're stepping down — you name it, this journal tracks it. Every 'less' day is a brick in the wall. The rules are gentle: an over day isn't a ruined day, and honesty beats perfection every single time. You can't step down what you won't look at. One caring note: if what you're cutting back on is something your body leans on hard, loop in a doctor — some step-downs deserve a professional co-pilot.

DAY ZERO · MY COMMITMENT

My Step-Down Plan

What I'm doing LESS of, in my own words:

Where I'm starting from (my honest current amount):

My why — what less makes room for:

My swap plan — what I'll reach for instead:

Signed by someone doing less and becoming more: _____

Day 1

Did you do less today than you would have a month ago? Any amount counts — log it.

Day 2

What moment today was hardest to hold the line? What was happening around you?

Day 3

What did you reach for instead today — and was it a kind swap or a sneaky trade?

Day 4

What's one time today you noticed the urge and let it pass without acting?

Day 5

Who or what made today easier? Who or what made it harder?

Day 6

What is 'less' giving you back so far — money, mornings, clarity, pride?

Day 7

If you went over today, no shame — what happened, and what's the adjustment for tomorrow?

Weekly Step-Down Check-In

This week compared to last week — honestly, how much less? My trickiest trigger this week and my adjustment: What less is already giving back to me:

Day 8

What's the feeling that most often sends you reaching? Name it, and give it one other option.

Day 9

Write a sentence of respect to yourself for showing up on day whatever-this-is.

Day 10

Picture the version of you at the end of this tracker. What does her day look like?

Day 11

Did you do less today than you would have a month ago? Any amount counts — log it.

Day 12
